About the Economic Development Council of Snohomish County

The EDC of Snohomish County is a not-for-profit, 501(c)3 corporation. We are community leaders pursuing the mission of economic vitality for Snohomish County through targeted recruitment, business expansion and retention, marketing and the formation of effective public/private partnerships.

The EDC's vision is a strong, secure and diverse economic future for Snohomish County. This will not occur without a long-term commitment by those choosing to take an interest in our success. Tough economic times bring financial challenges to all of us. However, in such times, it is even more important that our efforts and our funding are maintained so we are prepared for the turnaround. Recessions are not sustainable.

If you value our community, we invite you to become an EDC Investor.

Why They Invest in the EDC...

"The EDC plays a vital role in our economic health. Energy and environmental sustainability are important elements in strong economic growth. We partner with the EDC in the promotion of energy efficiency and clean renewable energy technologies."

Steve Klein, General Manager
PUD of Snohomish County

"The EDC's focus on targeted industry groups brings economic stability and meaningful jobs to the community. We are proud to partner with the EDC on positive economic development for the region."

Dave Brooks, CEO
Providence Regional Medical Center Everett

"Education, Workforce Development & Training, and Economic Development are inextricably linked. Current and potential employers need, among other things, a trained and capable workforce in order for them to relocate or expand their operation. By working with the EDC, WDC and others, Edmonds Community College has obtained grants, developed and equipped new programs, and brought on personnel specifically to meet the demands of employers. Without the partnership with the Snohomish County EDC much of what has been accomplished would not have been possible."

Jack Oharah, President
Edmonds Community College
